

Plagiarism Statement:

The reputation of this qualification is dependent on our students' academic integrity. The TEFL Academy does not tolerate plagiarism, nor the use of third parties, electronically or otherwise, to produce assignments.

Work submitted for the assignments must be your own. You must not discuss the assignments on open forums, nor publish any part of your assignment or the assignment instructions or documents. You must not request to see others' work, nor offer to show, give or sell any part of your own work to others.

We appreciate that some students study this course with a friend, and indeed would encourage you to work in this way. However, assignments must be produced entirely independently. If you and another currently enrolled student are found to have submitted assignments that are either similar or identical, your submissions will be cancelled, and you will both be asked to submit a new assignment.

Please bear in mind that we regularly conduct plagiarism spot-checks on our currently enrolled students' recent and past submissions. We are aware that, unfortunately, there are copies of The TEFL Academy assignments available or for sale online. Currently enrolled students found to have copied any of their work either partly or entirely from these assignments available or for sale online will be immediately revoked from the course without refund.

Students are required to run their work through our plagiarism detection software Copyleaks before submission. Any student who submits an assignment with an overall plagiarism score of 20% or more will be immediately revoked from the course without refund. There are some exceptions to this - see assignment-specific sections of this handbook for further information.

Students must not use AI to generate their assignment content. Students are required to run their work through our AI detection software before submission. Any student who submits an assignment with an overall AI score of 20% or more will be immediately revoked from the course without refund.

If you take any text or teaching ideas from TEFL books or websites, you must provide a clear indication that you have done so and reference such items properly. Currently enrolled students found to have taken material directly from these sources without referencing them will be immediately revoked from the course without refund.
